

The human sciences as liberal arts

Master of arts (MA)

GENERAL OUTLINE

Objectives

The Master of Arts allows students to acquire the knowledge and techniques required for a better grasp of contemporary realities, giving meaning to the intellectual wealth created by mankind over the centuries.

It offers a wide range of disciplines, from historical studies to theoretical approaches in the human sciences, languages and literature. As a result, it offers you the opportunity to practise the interdisciplinarity approach proper to a study of the arts.

Perspectives

After having completed this course, you will have acquired numerous skills that are beneficial in the professional world: independence, sense of responsibility and organisation, discernment, ability to analyse, synthesise and transmit complex information, argumentation skills, mastery of written and oral expression, versatility.

These assets are greatly appreciated in fields such as cultural institutions (museums, theatres, festivals, foundations), publishing, education, media and communications, international organisations, event planning.

Our alumni have different positions, such as teacher, journalist, communications officer, documentary production manager, cultural mediator, translator, web and new media projects officer, arts festival programme coordinator, or book and image digitisation specialist.
