

Conférence

Landscapes of Meaning : Geotourism and the Sustainable Exploitation of the European Geoheritage

Par

Dr. Thomas A. Hose

Faculty of Leisure & Tourism, Buckinghamshire Chilterns University College

Tom Hose initially trained as an earth scientist, gaining his BSc in geology and geography (University of London).

He gained his teaching qualification (University of Liverpool) in geography and science education. He completed his MA in museum and gallery administration with a thesis on the history of museum education.

Finally, he undertook extensive fieldwork in the UK, Europe and the USA in developing the geotourism concept, the focus of his doctoral thesis (University of Birmingham).

Tom Hose is presently a university principal lecturer in heritage and tourism management.

Mardi 24 mai 2005, 13.15-15.00
BFSH 2, Salle 4021

Dans le cadre du cours « Géomorphosites et paysage »
du Prof. E. Reynard

Renseignements : www.unil.ch/igul/ ou Emmanuel.Reynard@unil.ch, (tél. 021/692.30.65)