

Mari Viro Moser

Scientific Advisor and Deputy Head of Section, EU & Neighbouring Countries, Swiss Federal Office of Public Health, Division of International Affairs and PhD Student at the University of Neuchâtel/Faculty of Law

Mari graduated from the Law School of the University of Neuchâtel in 2002 and passed her Bar exam in the canton of Neuchâtel in 2005. After a few years of practice in a law firm, she worked as a research and teaching assistant of European law at the University of Neuchâtel. During that period, she published articles about the application of the Precautionary Principle in the EU Food law and WTO-law, which is also the subject of her PhD. Since 2011, Mari works in the International Affairs Division of the Swiss Federal Office of Public Health. This division represents Switzerland's interests in the field of public health in international organizations and with regard to other countries and to the EU. Between 2013 and 2015, she also worked as a part-time lecturer of International law for the Bachelor in Business law Program of the University of Applied Sciences (HEG-ARC). Mari's main research interests lie in the fields of risk analysis, public health, food safety and free trade.
