

Meaghan Beyer, LL.M. recently graduated cum laude from an LL.M. in International Human Rights Law at the University of Groningen (RUG). She holds a BA in International Relations from the RUG and a BA in Spanish Language, Literature and Culture from the University of Maryland. She is currently an intern at the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and will start an internship at the United Nations Interagency Task Force for the Prevention and Control of Non-communicable Diseases in February 2018. She is also currently an editorial assistant to Brigit Toebes and Gian Luca Burci for the forthcoming Research Handbook on Global Health Law.

Meaghan has also worked at the Global Health Law Groningen Research Centre on their project on children's rights and tobacco control. Her research interests include a human rights approach to the prevention of non-communicable diseases (NCDs) and the intersection between international human rights law and international trade law. Together with Brigit Toebes, she is developing a PhD proposal concerning the relevant international legal aspects of the adoption of regulatory frameworks addressing unhealthy diets and NCDs.
