Master of arts (MA) in public management and policy

GENERAL OUTLINE

Themes covered

The increasing complexity of the tasks carried out by the State and the manner in which it performs them require us to look at public service and the modernisation of public administrations in a new way. Today's institutions need decision-makers with interdisciplinary knowledge who are capable of understanding and solving complex managerial, economic, political and legal problems. Switzerland's multilingual culture necessitates a multicultural approach to management in the public and quasi-public sectors.

Career prospects

University studies develop a great many transverse skills: oral and written communication, critical and analytical thinking, the ability to summarise, carry out research, and so on.

This array of skills, combined with the specialist knowledge acquired on the course, is excellent preparation for a wide range of employment opportunities in a variety of sectors, such as:

- Federal, cantonal and communal public administration
- Non-profit organisations
- Quasi-public institutions
- Associative structures
- Journalism
- Doctoral studies
- Public and private companies
- Research and teaching
- International organisations

Alumni have different positions, such as counselor in bilateral economic relationships for Southern Asia and Oceania at the State Secretariat for Economic Affairs SECO.

EDUCATIONAL CONTENT

Description

The Master of Arts in Public Management and Policy offers interdisciplinary teaching, methodological tools, case studies and exercises all focused on the analysis of public administration. This degree is characterised by an approach which is both academically and professionally oriented. Both the courses and the teaching style emphasise these characteristics.

During the first two semesters, all the students follow a common programme with the basic interdisciplinary training given in Lausanne, Bern or Lugano.

In the third and fourth semesters, students choose from the optional study modules taught on the course partners' campuses. During this period, they may also do an internship and must write a Master's thesis.

Mobility

Because teaching occurs in three of Switzerland's different linguistic regions, student mobility is strongly encouraged.
